SMELTER CO.'S NEW SCHEME

Insists on Making Settlements For Ores on Another Basis.

F. D. HIGGINBOTHAM FAILS

BAD BUSINESS METHODS SAID TO BE RESPONSIBLE.

T DEVELOPED YESTERDAY that not a little uneasiness is being felt in the ranks of the copper ore pro lucers over a new rule which the Amer-City Yesterday.

W. P. O'Meara was in receipt of a dispatch from Tonopah yesterday which conveyed the information that pay ore had just been encountered in the financial columns of the Engineering and Mining Journal rather than the figures supplied and quotations made by the New York metal exchange. Ordinarily this requirement would be gladly accepted by the producer, for, up to date, it is declared by some of those interested the quotations of the superior of these interested the quotations. can Smelting & Refining company is tations as published from week to week in the financial columns of the Engineering and Mining Journal rather than the figures supplied and quotations made by the New York metal exchange. Ordinarily this requirement would be gladly accepted by the producer, for, up to date, it is declared by some of those interested, the quotations of that journal have been much should the figures to serve any purpose, should the company care or have reason to juggle with them.

"As it stands at present," said a man who knows something of the ore buying business yesterday, "nothing could be fairer than the use of the Journal's figures as a basis of settlement. For instance, from day to day during the week, the producer now makes nominal settlement on the quotation wired from settlement on the quotation wired from New York by the Associated Press every morning. At the end of the week, every morning. At the end of the week, however, the man seiling under a contract makes final settlement on the average price for the six days, and he has usually been given the option of the exchange or Journal quotations. The latter have proven the more reliable, and have generally been accepted. Now that the company is insisting on the latter, the producer is becoming suspicious that there is some sinister motive behind it, and he is registering a kick.

Heretofore, the price ruling on cast-"Heretofore, the price ruling on casting brands has also been taken as the basis from which to figure. The company now asks that electrolytic quotations be used instead. To that I can see no objection, as the price on that brand of copper has fivariably ruled a little higher than casting and steadler, but I anticipate if this change is made, the usual deductions will be increased a little to make up the difference, so the result to the producer will be the same.

"There may be no real cause for alarm in the adoption of the new rule by the company, but the possibilities that it prevents are certainly causing considerable uneasiness, which may yet rable uneasiness, which may ye though, for the producer is at the mercy of the trust, anyhow. It controls the paper, the metal exchange and all can fix things just as it likes."

BROKER HIGGINBOTHAM FAILS. Goes to the Wall as Result of Bad Business Ventures.

Not a little surprise was created in tock exchange circles yesterday mornstock exchange circles yesterday morning when the announcement was made from the caller's stand that Frank D. Higginbotham had suspended, and that his unexpired contracts would be taken care of under the rules of the exchange. No previous intimation of his intention and been given out. His affairs w soon under discussion in all parts of the room, and members and spectators alike were everywhere heard to ex-press their sympathy, for, with all his aults, he was well liked by every-soon as the call was ended, his office was besieged by numbers of brokers and clients, who were anxious to learn just how they stood. Mr. Higginbotham did not put in an appearance himself, and Henry Peery stepped into the breach and did what he could to get matters in shape for unraveling.

The swamped man's chief creditor, it was soon learned, was the McCor-nick banking house, which held an overdraft against him for about $10,-000. This amount was quickly liquidated by Henry Peery, for whom Higginbotham worked for ten years or more previous to going into business or himself, so all that remains to be djusted are the accounts and stock transactions existing between Higgin-botham and the other members of the exchange and a small number of clients. When these have all been adtented it is thought that no one will have suffered very seriously, though but little was known about it at the of the day.

In the afternoon the members of the exchange met to consider what action take in the matter. After organizing, with Ralph Guthrie as chairman and R J. Evans secretary, a discussion of the failure was followed by the appointment of C. E. Hudson, A. S. Campbell and W. H. Farnsworth as a committee to investigate his finances, and to whom all unfinished business between him and the members of the exchange should be referred.

It is expected that some definite idea f how he stands will have been arned by tomorrow, when the exhange will be called upon to adjust the matter under the rules governing the affairs of its members.

The reasons for the failure could not be definitely learned. Mr. Higginbotham did not come down town, and no one could get him at his home. It is pretty generally understood how. s pretty generally understood, how-ever, that he has been playing in hard luck for some time past. It was stated that the squeeze in Martha Washington was accountable for his fall, but it was earned that his "shorting" of those hares was not of sufficient importance n itself to have caused his suspension. His running behind is believed to have of poor judgment in play-

More Concerning Recent Strike-Geo.

Gunn in Camp. L. Wilson, manager of the Copper Belt company's Deep nes, was yesterday in recent operations, bore date nd related that in four-foot vein which high values in gold at the surface only a few hundred feet distant.

The ore now being followed in the vein is said to be equally as good as that first encountered and Manager Wilson is feeling in mighty high spirits in consequence. The first assays taken show 16.2 per cent copper, $4.20 gold and 5.4 ounces in silver per ton.

The letter to Mr. Wilson also conveyed the information that George Guin, the American Smelting company's expert, had visited the property a few days before and had signified his intention of taking another peep at the property before his return to Salt Lake. It was understood that Mr. Guinn was making a study of conditions in the work of the surface Gunn was making a study of condi-tions in the various portions of the re-gion with a view of determining their future possibilities.

by some of those interested, the quotations of that journal have been much more reliable, and, on the average, higher than those made by the exchange, the actual sales only being used in their compilation.

It is no secret, however, according to the men who claim to know, that the American Smelting & Refining company now controls the stock of the Engineering and Mining Journal, and the fear is expressed that on that account the heretofore reliable table of quotations may be made a one-sided exhibit, and that it would be easy to bend the figures to serve any purpose, should the company care or have rea-viously figured it.

It will be remembered that Mr. Knox declared when the shaft was started that he would be on hand to celebrate the discovery of ore at the Thanksgiving day feast at the mine. That he missed it by nearly twenty days will be taken by the majority of mining men as nothing to be ashamed of, and if he will now rib things up so that the celebration may take place on Christmas day, his trifling miscalculation will be entirely overlooked, if it is not forgotten.

tion will be entirely overlooked, if it is not forgotten.

Seriously speaking, however, the discovery of pay ore in the Montana-Tonopah within so close a time #ter the day set by Mr. Knox, clearly demonstrates that his judgment of the ground acquired by the company was not at all at fault and it is safe to say that he will be genuinely congrafulat. that he will be genuinely congratulated by those whom he permitted to join him in launching the enterprise. Additional particulars of the strike will be forthcoming on the arrival of Mr. O'Meara next Friday.

Severe Losses Resulted.

Severe losses in prices of stocks have resulted from the week's trading as a result of the crisis in the money market. The week started off with some show of resistance to depression, chiefly show in a very dull market, showing the determination of holders not to sacrifice their holdings at a time when the absorptive power of the market was very slight. The banks and money lenders seemed to have taken a decision to prepare at once for the prospective demands upon them, and they began to retrench by the contraction of loans outstanding in the stock market. The result considerably forced liquidation and a rapidly falling market.

The acute phase of the Venezuelan situation had considerable effect upon the market, principally of a sentimental character, but no other cause were sentenced.
